Since fall 2015 there is a so called „Transitzentrum“ in Manching and Ingolstadt. Here, refugees from so called „safe countries of origin“ and from countries with a low perspective of stay in Germany are admitted.

How does the asylum process in a transit camp work? What does one have to pay attention to? Which legal possibilities are there for refugees, to undergo against a negative decision? What are the rules and regulations for refugees in transitcamps? These and more questions will be answered in this multilingual event by the asylum rights lawyer Ms. Maria Kalin. After her presentation, there is a possibility to ask individual questions and get counselling. Invited are all refugees and their supporters as well as all interested people.

The event is free of charge. Refugees from Manching/Ingolstadt get an INVG single way bus ticket (worth 3 Euro).

*participants of the protest will be accompanied from Max-Immelmann-Camp to the church

 The event will be translated into English and Russian simultaneously (headphones available)

The event is organised in cooperation with the Petra-Kelly-Foundation.
